It is located in a ger district of Ulaanbaatar. Around this church there are over 100 gers (Mongolian homes). Just outside the church's property there is a well that supplies the entire neighborhood with water.

Pastor's Home & Greenhouse Frame

Just adjacent to the "ger" parsonage is a skeleton of a greenhouse. Paul will be meeting with the Pastor and his wife next week regarding this ministry. A greenhouse flourishing with vegetables would provide income for the church and food for this pastor's family.

Dirt Road in this Ger District

This ger district is several hundred acres. This picture was taken at 10:00 a.m. It is a sunny day, but the strong winds blow sand into the air causing it to appear cloudy. With dirt whipping in one's face, walking is a very unpleasant experience. Yet, most Mongolians have no car and are forced to walk everywhere they go!

Ministry in Action...Wind-Blown Fence

Each ger has a "fence" to mark their property. These fences may be anything that stand and define the home's lot. With the strong winds, Paul and the Bible college students re-set a family's fence that was blown down during the night.
